Jailbreak Accomplice Dies At Hospital

The twenty-year old accomplice in a jail break here Apr. 23 died Tuesday afternoon of bullet wounds, suffered when he was trapped shortly after the escape.

Truman Engle was pronounced dead at approximately 3:30 p.m., Tuesday, after hovering at death's door for the previous 13 days.

Engle was shot by law enforcement officers within two hours after the jailbreak as he fled across the L. & N. Railroad's swinging bridge on N. Main Street. He was attempting to escape into the Yard section of Hazard when shot through the kidney.

Engle and a friend, James McIntosh, 19, picked up three or four of the seven escapees just one block east of the jail.

Their car crashed into two parked cars on East Main Street as they fled north on Ky. 15. The escapees scattered in all directions while Engle and McIntosh headed for the bridge. Caught up with at the bridge, city police reported at the time that Engle opened fire on officers. In the exchange that followed, the two were shot; McIntosh hit in the foot, escaped but turned himself into county authorities an hour after the shooting.

The 5 of the seven who escaped the county jail by cutting their way through the ceiling are still at large.

Funeral arrangements for Engle are incomplete, pending the arrival of his sister, Mrs. Pauline, of Illinois.

He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Engle, one other sister, Mrs. Amydean Howard, of Combs; two brothers, Thurman and Burton Engle, both of Combs.

Burial will be in the Riverside Cemetery with Engle Funeral Home in charge.

Combs Cleared: State Orders Banks To Pay

Former Perry County Judge J. H. Banks was ordered Tuesday to reimburse the State for State pipe used on his farm to bridge a culvert.

Banks and former Perry County Highway Superintendent Luther Combs tried in Franklin Circuit Court. The case against Combs was dismissed by Circuit Court Judge J. B. Ardrey because Combs "was acting under orders."

Banks was ordered to pay the State $1,262 for the pipe or return it to the State. Banks' attorney, M. B. "Tug" Fields, said today no decision has been made yet on whether to appeal the case.

The suit, filed in January, sought to collect $1,262 from Banks and Combs for diverting 96 feet of reinforced concrete pipe from a State road project to the Banks' farm.

The suit charged that the pipe was used with the "consent and connivance of Combs" Combs was defeated by H. B. Noble.

In the original complaint, it was noted that the culvert material was to have been used on the Coolidge Fork road, but that the pipe was used to bridge a gulley on the Banks farm near the site of the road project.

Teenage Rodeo Planned Sunday

Perry County's top nine teenage drivers will compete here Sunday in the Jaycee-sponsored "Teenage-Rodeo," a test of driving skills to be held at the By Pass Parking lot at 1 p.m.

Run-offs were held last week at three county schools.

Representing Dilce Combs will be Cooley Colwell, Michael Bruce Stewart and O. V. Thompson; M. C. Napier, Donnie Couch, Roger Noble and Thomas Ballew; and Hazard High School James Yonts, Henry Watts and Mike Leedy.

The local winner in Sunday's competition will compete in the State Teenage Rodeo to be held in Mayfield, May 24.

Rodeo chairman this year is William Biggs.

Flood Threat Passes For Perry

Any threat of a flood here passed yesterday afternoon when the North Fork of the Kentucky River crested at 19 feet, one foot below Hazard's flood stage of 20 feet.

The Hazard City Water Plant reported today the crest was reached at 4:30 p.m. suited in this being another Wednesday; by 5 p.m., the water of the "scare" rumors.

Engle had started to fall and has been falling continuously ever since.

Water started rising here late Monday afternoon, causing at least a flood of rumors that the water would be coming over the banks.

Monday night's meeting of the Board of Commissioners was broken up by one report that the river had risen three feet in three hours. This report, like many others, proved to be false.

The same night, a report from Lothair had the water with two feet of Ky. 15. A check by Kentucky State Police re-

Deer Forest To Remain Protected

Perry and Breathitt county sportsmen pleaded here Tuesday night for Robinson Forest to remain a "posted" game preserve. And got what they wanted.

At the close of a one-hour meeting of sportsmen and State officials at city hall, sportsmen were left with the understanding that Robinson Forest will remain "posted" in the interest of hunters.

Sportsmen told Don Stroud and Freden Hardy, Department of Conservation, that to take down the posters would mean the end of the deer population in the forest. Sportsmen noted they feared random killing of deer.

Stroud noted that while the final decision was up to the Fish and Game Commission, he felt the commission would go along with the sportsmen.

Members instructed Roscoe Davis, 7th District Commissioner, to go on record as favoring the posted reserve.

"Common Sense Afloat" Asked Of Anglers

Conservation Officer Ora Davis today issued a special appeal to Perry county fishermen to "use common sense afloat." Davis, looking to the biggest vacationing and fishing year in 1958 season. Hoping to cut that history, said more people will be taking to the waterways of Kentucky this year than ever before. "There will be more people, and we're afraid, more accidents, unless everyone uses common sense afloat," Davis said. Statisticians estimate 35 persons will die in boating accidents in Kentucky during the 1958 season. Hoping to cut that number, Davis issued these eight rules for staying alive on Kentucky waters this summer. "There will be more people, and we're afraid, more

(1) Know your boat—every boat has its limitation. Learn what you can expect from your boat. (2) Balance your load—distribute weight evenly in the boat, from side to side and from bow to stern. (3) Watch the weather—head for shore before a storm breaks. If caught out, seat passengers on the floor. (4) Keep low—and step in the center when boarding or changing seats. (5) Head into waves—if waves are high, head your boat at an angle towards the waves at a slow speed. (6) Use the right motor—too much power can damage your boat, may even swamp it. Look for OBC recommended horsepower plate. (7) Don't overload—seats do not indicate capacity. Two or three adults may be a full load under many conditions. (8) Avoid sharp turns—fast, sharp turns are hard on equipment and sometimes people. Take it easy.

COUNTY AGENTS' MEMOS

Get Strawberry Crates and Cups Now; Sheep Meeting Held in Morehead

Paul Keen, County Agricultural Extension Agent

John Caudill, Associate County Agent

Claude Patterson, Manager of Upper Kentucky River strawberry association, asked us to announce that all growers wishing to purchase cups and crates from association should come to his place on Troublesome Creek this Saturday, May 10. Patterson lives about three miles below Homeplace and will have road signs and crates on left of road so his place will be easily located.

All strawberry producers wishing to secure cups and crates through association should purchase all crates needed Saturday, orders will be for cash only.

Dusting Strawberries

Strawberries should be dusted while in full bloom. The material to use 5% DDT and 5% Chlorine dust.

After berries set on, strawberries should be dusted with Captone dust.

Rains are making any spray program extremely difficult. If there is a period of 24-hours for spray or dust to dry, it would be worthwhile.

Sheep for Eastern Kentucky
We really enjoyed the sheep meeting and lamb barbecue in Morehead last Monday. Victor Spurlock, Green Holliday, Cager Napier and John C. Combs and Paul Keen, county agent, made up our group and we all really enjoyed the trip in spite of the usual rainy weather.

We heard reports from Eastern Kentucky farmers in sheep business, specialists from University of Kentucky, and sheepmen from Montana, Texas, and Iowa.

All agreed that sheep are most profitable livestock enterprise for most Eastern Kentucky farmers. Sheep numbers can be very profitably increased if properly managed. Some of the main points brought out that are important to success are:

1. Fencing—four or five strands of barbwire or webwire are needed for sheep.

2. Pasture—good pasture consisting of grasses and legumes. Six sheep require same pasture as one cow.

3. Good quality legume hay is essential.

4. Secure top quality ewes. Best ewes are obtained from West since they are practically free of parasites and because they produce top quality lambs. Most sheepmen get yearling ewes for around $25.00.

5. All used either Southdowns or Hampshire rams.

6. Drenching two or preferably three times a year for control of parasites is essential for success.

Most of the growers realize an income of about $25.00 per year. Very little housing is needed for sheep. We will advise any farmer wishing to get in sheep business to first of all get fences in order, then get some good pastures seeded and make arrangements for good quality legume hay. We believe that any farmer starting should get at least one ram flock, one ram flock of at least 15 to 20 ewes.

The substation at Quicksand recently started a flock of sheep. Visitors are welcome to see the flock and other projects being carried out.

Highlights Of The Mining Convention

Mechanized Mining Introduced

"As mechanized mining was introduced and extended it became evident that to develop the full potential of new and improved equipment it was essential that the methods of the industrial engineer be adopted and that the section foreman, as the key man, needed additional and somewhat specialized training to assure satisfactory results," John E. Kaites told those attending a session of the 1958 American Mining Congress Coal Convention being held here.

Kaites, who is an industrial engineer with Berwind-White Coal Mining Co., Windber, Pa., said that his company for many years has conducted schools to prepare employees for examinations leading to certification by the State as to competency for positions as mine foremen, assistant foremen and firebosses. He said in many cases exceptional students had additional training at company expense at recognized mining schools in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Under the company program, every official at the mine, including mine foremen and superintendents, is required to take the training which is altered to meet the individual's needs. The program covers a minimum of two to four weeks and, according to Kaites, "better cost control and cost reduction can be attained through industrial engineering and maintenance standards. And, as all new products, they have to be sold, put into practice and followed through."

Mechanization

The trend toward mechanization of coal mines had been brought about mainly as a result of economic conditions, Mack H. Shumate, assistant general manager, Truxx-Tract Coal Co., Kay Ford, W. Va.

HAZARD FINEST KENTUCKY

told those attending a haulage session of the 1958 American Mining Congress Coal Convention being held here.

Speaking on conveyor belt and mine car haulage, Shumate said the problem of comparing all-belt haulage with a combination of belts and mine cars is difficult because operating conditions of a particular mine would dictate the successful application of haulage systems. Pointing out that mine operators hesitate to replace all rails, mine cars and locomotives in an individual operation, especially at a mine which has been operating for 10 to 20 years, Shumate said that possibly the best approach to this type of problem is a combination of belt conveyor and mine cars.

Shumate said his company's experience in West Virginia has shown that combination belt and mine haulage facilitates the extension of haulage during rapid development and extraction behind high-capacity mining equipment. Using a West Virginia mine as an example, Shumate said the use of conveyor belts resulted in a large reduction of mine haulage costs. He said in 1952 the haulage costs were 31 cents per ton for labor and supplies, and since the installation of conveyor belts there had been a steady decrease to 20 cents per ton early this year. This is a savings of one third in haulage in spite of five wage increases amounting to $5.90 per eight-hour day as well as an additional $80 for vacation pay and an additional 10 cents per ton for the mine workers welfare fund, according to Shumate.

Alternating Current Safer

The use of alternating current systems in coal mines is safer, more economical and more reliable than the use of direct current, according to C. R. Huffman, staff electrical consultant for the Donegan Coal & Coke Co. of Richwood, W. Va. Huffman made the statement today at an underground power session of the American Mining Congress 1958 Coal Convention being held here.

Speaking on the factors in evaluating and selecting alternating current systems for underground coal mines, Huffman said that today one can get alternating current motors on practically any kind of mining equipment with the exception of haulage locomotives and that any coal company planning on opening up a new mine or expanding operations where new equipment will be required is overlooking an opportunity if it does not investigate the advantage of the use of alternating current.

Continuous Miner

The steady growth of mechanized coal mining in the United States as illustrated for coal miners today in a speech given at a session of the American Mining Congress 1958 Coal Convention being held here. R. L. Anderson, coal industry analyst for the U. S. Bureau of Mines, emphasized that the use of recently developed continuous mining equipment has resulted in another increase in production per man.

The continuous miner is a power-driven machine which literally "claws" the coal out of the seam and, according to Anderson, there were 510 such machines in operation in the bituminous coal mines in 1956 with 168,000 tons being added in 1957. He said that in 24 mines checked in 1956, which employed only continuous mining, the average output per man day was 14.08 tons as compared with 11.17 tons per man day for conventional mining. Total production of bituminous coal and lignite in 1956 was 501,000,000 tons, and the average productivity for all mines was 10.28 tons per man day.

Anderson said that production of coal by continuous mining has been increasing steadily in recent years while conventional mining by scrapers and belt conveyors and mobile loading into mine cars has been decreasing. He pointed out that in 1952, when records of continuous mining were first kept, production by this method totaled 8 million tons of bituminous coal, whereas in 1957 this had increased to 50 million tons.

Cost of Coal

"Utility and industrial companies are looking more and more closely into the overall cost of coal in terms of cost per pound of steam generated rather than in cost per ton delivered to the plant. The coal industry therefore, should recognize that upgrading coals must be looked at more and more intensely," R. H. Wolin, assistant chief engineer, Combustion Engineering Co., Inc., New York, told those attending a coal-preparation session of the American Mining Congress 1958 Coal convention being held here.

Speaking on the factors in evaluating and selecting alternating current systems for underground coal mines, Huffman said that today one can get alternating current motors on practically any kind of mining equipment with the exception of haulage locomotives and that any coal company planning on opening up a new mine or expanding operations where

Speaking on future demand of the electric utility industry for high-quality coal, Wolin said that large, expensive and efficient steam generating units are only as good as their availability, that their availability and overall efficiency are greatly affected by operating and maintenance costs, and that the quality of the fuels burned has a great influence on these items.

He said every coal producer has some measure of control over the quality of his product in that he can eliminate part of the ash, the sulphur and the alkalies in it.

"For best and most efficient steam generation, the operators of any large unit should know what coals are being burned all the time. Different coals require different amounts of air—require different burner and damper settings—more or less frequent use of foot blowers, etc., and coals which for one reason or another do not run uniform in a plant, lead to poor operations," Wolin said.

He said that part of the problem could be solved by blending the poorer coal with better grades.

Pointing out that the utility companies are becoming more cost-conscious in regard to coal, Wolin said a study by a mid-western utility indicated that there is as much as 25 cents per ton difference between operating costs of an average coal and the cost of one of their lowest grade coals, which represents 5 percent of the price of the coal. He said a

TRUTH-AD FOR THE UNCHURCHED
BY WINN T. BARR

Let us start each day with the realization that we live in an infinity of time, space, and cosmic architecture that makes us infants. Let us start each day on our knees before Jesus Christ, who alone claims and gives evidence of knowing and controlling the true nature of existence. Operating within the framework of His authoritative interpretation of the Universe, we judge ourselves weak and ignorant spirits clinging solely to Christ's Word as an infant to his father's word. If there is a God who is imperceptible to human senses, I can have a soul that is also thus. If I can't define matter, I can't deny spirit. Unbelief of the Bible is sheer impudence and colossal conceit. The only ultimate philosophical knowledge we have is what the Bible tells us.

The good NEWS belongs in the NEWSPAPER, but LOOK in the BOOK it comes from, and SEARCH for the CHURCH that obeys that book most fully.

Look for a TRUTH-AD every Thursday.

Ribbons Awarded To Knott 4-H Clubs

140 4-H Club members, parents, leaders and friends attended a 4-H Rally Day at Hindman Saturday, April 26. Highlights of the meeting were demonstrations in breadmaking, dairy foods, and general agriculture and Home Economics subjects. A style show followed the demonstrations in which the 4-H girls from various clubs modeled their 4-H sewing. Paula J. Cornett was the champion of the style show, but because she was a Jr. club member she was not eligible to attend the style show at U. K. during the 4-H week in June. Mildred Hall will represent Knott County in the State Style Show.

Another highlight of the Rally was the awarding of check by the Ky. Power Company to the 1st and 2nd place clubs in Knott County. First place honors went to Ball Branch 4-H Club. Second place went to Upper Jones Fork.

The following club members gave blue ribbon demonstrations: Mildred Hall, Flo Pigman, Fredia Morton, Marques Bentley, Elizabeth Ann Laws, Fanny Franklin, Elva Sue Gibson, Patrice Jean Mullens, Thelma Jean Hudson, Norma Jean Campbell, Billie Mullens, Paul Brett Johnson, Roger Allen Matthews.

County Champions of their respective divisions are: Mildred Hall, Billy Mullens, Fanny Franklin, Suetta Howard, Norma Jean Campbell, James Neal Johnson. The champions will represent Knott County at the district Rally, Saturday, May 10th.

Refreshments for the County Rally were donated by the Pet Milk Company and Eastern Kentucky Beverage Company of Hazard.

Coming from town Friday evening we saw where Mr. Hobart Pigman had gone off the road and nearly landed into the river. He was not seriously injured.

The Baccalaureate Sermon for the Leatherwood High School at 2:00 p. m. Sunday was delivered by Rev. Thompson, pastor of the Leatherwood Baptist Church.

Tom White is now able to be up moving around but is still under the doctor's care. Hope soon he will be able to go back to work.
